Provisional labour market data for June 2007 indicate that the full-time gainfully occupied population increased by 587 persons while unemployment decreased by 724 persons when compared to June 2006.

This news release presents provisional labour market data, provided by the Employment and Training Corporation (ETC), for the month of June 2007. In the month under review, the labour supply decreased by 137 persons over the same month in 2006. The full-time gainfully occupied population increased by 587 persons, whereas the registered unemployed decreased by 724 persons.

Full-time Employment

A comparison between the provisional data for June 2007 and June 2006 indicates that full-time employment increased by 587 persons. As evident in Table 2, the private sector increased by 1,184 persons, whereas the public sector decreased by 597 persons.

With specific reference to the private sector, an increase in employment took place in real estate, renting and business activities ([NACE 70-74] +1,102 persons). This sector includes accounting and auditing activities, business and management consultancy, architectural and engineering activities, advertising, security activities, industrial cleaning and call centres. Growth in employment also occurred in community, social and personal services activities ([NACE 90-93] +347 persons). This includes betting companies and entertainment activities amongst other services. Other domains within the private sector which reported a growth in employment included education ([NACE 80] +111 persons) and health and social work ([NACE 85] +74 persons). On the other hand, the main domains within the private sector which have seen a drop in employment were the following: hotels and restaurants ([NACE 55] -307), manufacturing ([NACE 15-37] -332); and transport, storage and communication ([NACE 60-64] -489).

In the twelve months to June 2007, employment in the public sector went down by 597. The principal domains in which this decline took place were the following: transport, storage and communication ([NACE 60-64] - 233 persons); construction ([NACE 45] -184 persons); and electricity, gas and water supply ([NACE 40-41] -153 persons). Two exceptions to this declining trend were the domains of public administration ([NACE 75] +146 persons) and health and social work activities ([NACE 85] +98 persons).

Part-time Employment

Provisional data for June 2007 indicate that total part-time employment rose by 3,130 persons over the same month in 2006. This increase included 1,182 persons whose part-time job is their secondary occupation and 1,948 persons whose part-time job is their primary occupation.

The principal domains which have seen an increase in part-time jobs as secondary employment were the following: real estate, renting and business activities ([NACE 70-74] +450 persons) and wholesale and retail trade ([NACE 50 -52] +208 persons).

These were also the domains that registered rises in part-time jobs as primary occupations ([NACE 70-74] +649 persons) and wholesale and retail trade ([NACE 50-52] +415 persons).

Apprentices, trainees and students

When comparing the figures for June 2007 and June 2006, it transpires that the number of apprentices, students and trainees dropped by 14.1 per cent, as illustrated in Table 1 ■
